About Equinox Light

Maurice Amiel · Tuesday, September 21st, 2021

There is something like a fullness in the equinox light, a sense of repose and delight in its play over landscape, people and buildings.

Enjoy!

Roof and tree tops in a welcoming stance

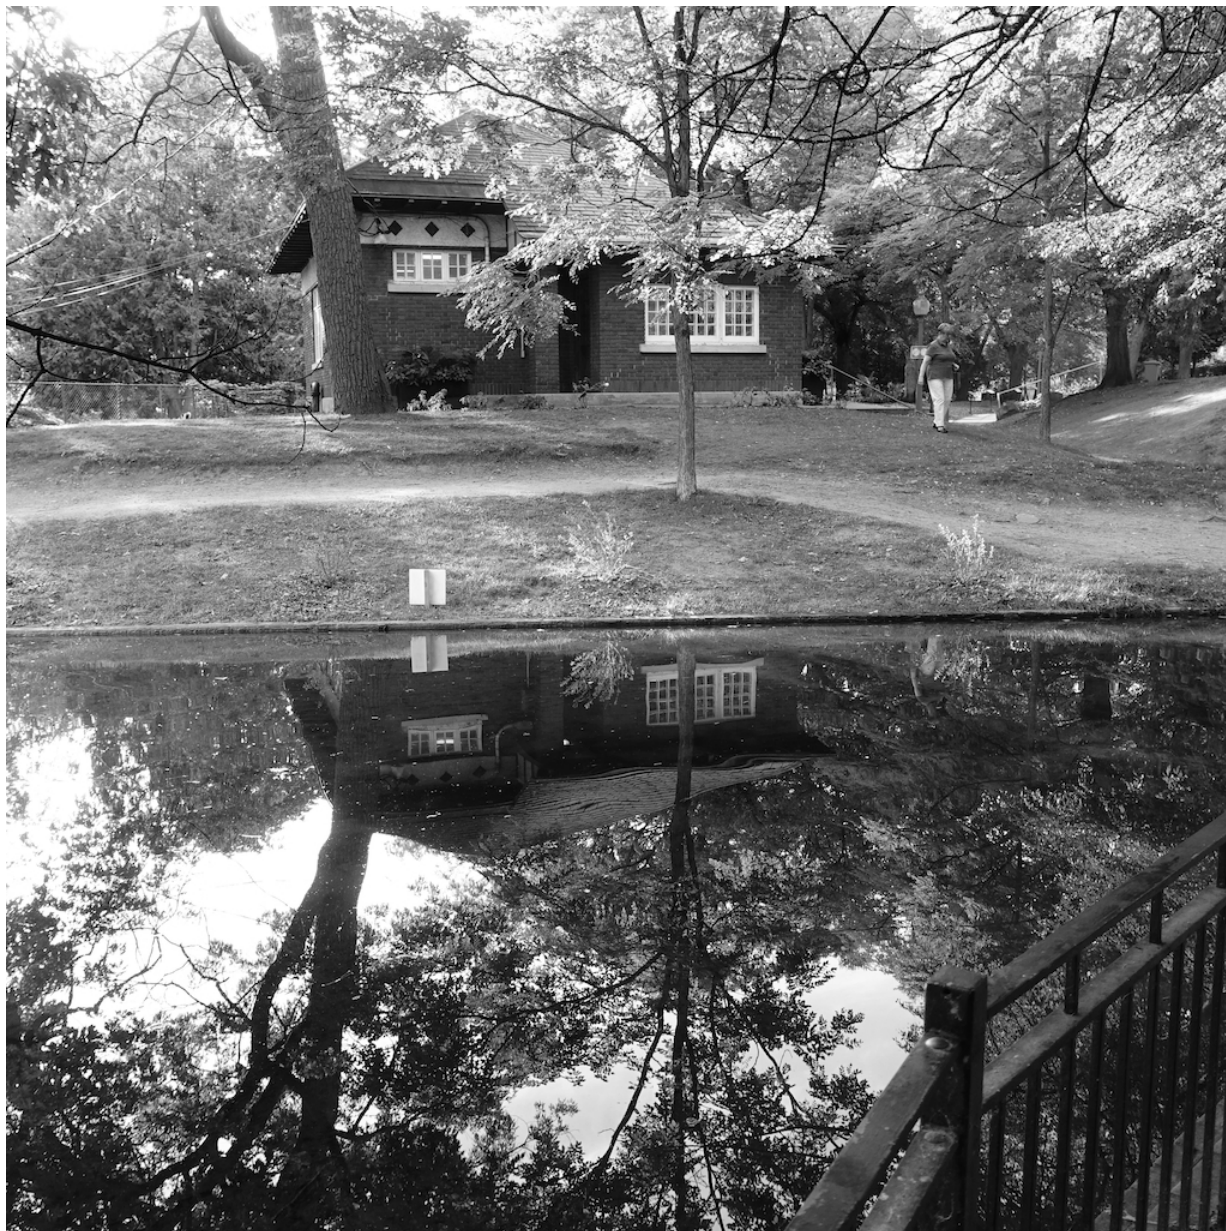

Huddle of roofs under equinox light

The tree huddle by the mound

Black and white can still render the powerful presence of trees

A pause for reflection

water, earth and air invite the spark of vision

Alone with a book and the light

alone at the bend in the walkway

Together by the brook and the light

Silently flows time

End words

Parks are not just the lungs of the world ... they allow us somehow to be at peace with it.
