Dare to Dance in Public Film Festival Round 3: Meet the Judges

Sarah Elgart · Wednesday, September 4th, 2019

Finally, Round 3 of Dare to Dance in Public Film Festival is upon us... We are one week away from launching! Dare to Dance in Public Film Festival (D2D in Public Film Fest) is dedicated to dance that happens outside of stages and studios, dance that is bursting out like flowers in a cracked sidewalk. D2D in Public Film Fest is committed to short films that explore the intersection of dance and the camera, films that spread the wealth of dance and challenge the notion of a proper time and place to dance. By its very nature and content, D2D in Public Film Fest is asking the question:

Why can't dance happen anywhere at any time?

In advance of our launch, this week I am thrilled to share with you this year's extraordinary panel of judges. They come from all walks of the dance, performing arts, arts, film, and educational communities of Los Angeles and beyond. We are honored to have them join us! Please meet: Katherine Helen Fisher, d. Sabela grimes, Ben Johnson, Renae Williams Niles, Tony Testa, and of course, yours truly, (Sarah Elgart). These are people working NOW on the forefronts of dance, film, stage, and more... You'll want to get your work in front of these eyes!

Moved by how Octavia E. Butler invents interrelated notions of humanness in her Parable Series, “Dark Matter Messages” dreams Butler’s unfinished manuscript, Parable of the Trickster, into a live performance experience. On faculty at USC’s Glorya Kaufman School of Dance, he continues to cultivate, Funkamental MediKinetics, a movement system he created that focuses on the methodical dance training and community building elements evident in Hip Hop, Black vernacular and Street dance forms.
