Our Friends · Wednesday, April 21st, 2021

When you are living in a small living space, it can often seem like an impossible task to decorate whilst making the most out of the space that you have. However, it is not impossible. In this article, we will be providing you with some of the top bathroom design options that we believe will work for your small living space.

Make The Use Of The Small Spaces

When you are designing your bathroom, it is important to make sure that you are making use of all the space that you have. With many smaller rooms having an alcove, little corners, and very little wiggle room when it comes to moving baths and showers as a result of the plumbing, it is important to make sure you are using as much of the space as possible with storage and strategic placement of appliances.

Consider Space Saving Heating Options

In addition to being strategic about the placement of your appliances, it is important to make sure that you are looking at effective heating solutions. With several column radiators as well as a towel rack out there on the market to help you heat your bathroom in a few simple steps, there are several options out there for you to choose from that limit the space being taken up in the room with wall-mounted solutions, allowing you to have the heat that you need without having to take up floor space with a traditional radiator or heating system.

Wall Mount Appliances Where You Can

If you are looking for another way to limit the space that you are using within the floor of your bathroom space then using wall-mounted appliances such as the sink and the taps can help you to save space. Though it can take time for you to find the right tap and sink that fits the shape of your room, there are several ways that you can begin to limit the amount of space used up in the bathroom. When you are choosing the appliances, this is also a great way of bringing colour into the room with bold black furnishings.

Invest In Practical Storage Solutions

The final way that you can go about designing the perfect small bathroom space is by investing in successful storage solutions. By placing a shelving unit in the corner of the room, on the back of the door or mounted to the wall, there are several ways that you can capitalise on the room that you have to ensure maximum storage even in the smallest of spaces. With several different storage solutions for you to opt for as well as cabinets that also double up as mirrors, this is a simple yet effective way of managing your storage space.

Regardless of the amount of space that you have, it is important to make sure that you are using it to your advantage particularly when it comes to your bathroom space. Which of these will you be using to create the perfect bathroom space for your home?
